In the world of Brazilian football, there are derbies that go beyond the simple game of football. One of the classics is between Flamengo and Atlético Mineiro, but there is also a strong rivalry between Flamengo and Atlético Mineiro, also known as Atlético-MG.

Flamengo, based in Rio de Janeiro, has as its historical rivals the other three teams of the city, being them Fluminense, Botafogo and Vasco da Gama. However, the dispute between Flamengo and Atlético-MG, from the state of Minas Gerais, also makes part of one of the greatest rivalries in Brazilian football.

The dispute between these two teams began officially in 1929, when Atlético-MG was founded under the name Palestra Itália. The rivalry intensified from the 1940s, reaching its peak in the 1960s. E, desde então, esse confronto sempre reservou momentos marcantes no futebol brasileiro.

History of the Rivalry
