Football juggling and tricks

Freestyle football is the art of juggling a football using any part of the body, excluding the 3 elbows to the hands.

It combines football tricks, dance, acrobatics and music to entertain onlookers and compete with opponents.

The official governing 3 body for this sport is known as the World Freestyle Football Association (WFFA).

[1][2]History [edit]

The art of freestyle football 3 can be traced to games of Southeast Asia such as chinlone, jianzi and sepak takraw, which have been practised for 3 2,000 years.

Fundamental freestyle tricks such as the 'Neck Stall' and 'Around The World' were first popularly performed in the West 3 by circus performers, notably including Enrico Rastelli and Francis Brunn.[3][4]

In the 1970s and 1980s, Argentine footballer Diego Maradona famously brought 3 his freestyle 'Life is Life' warm-up to international attention while playing for SSC Napoli.

The ability to freestyle, however, was widely 3 criticized at the time as not having direct relevance to playing the game of football.[citation needed]

At the beginning of the 3 21st century, several significant events helped elevate freestyle football with broader recognition.

Brazilian footballer Ronaldinho starred in Nike advertising campaigns such 3 as 'Joga Bonito' (English: The Beautiful Game), which popularized the ability to practice alone with a ball and develop new 3 moves and tricks.[5]

Inspired by Maradona, South Korean footballer Mr Woo sought to become a football entertainer. He established Guinness world records 3 and performed at the 1988 Summer Olympics opening ceremony, and the FIFA World Cups in 1990 and 1994.

[6] Soufiane Touzani[7] 3 from the Netherlands introduced a new style of lower tricks, which were popularized through viral videos.

[7][better source needed]

Footballer Sandy Levittas 3 (a.k.a.

Bambiball) was among the first women to share videos of her freestyle skills,[8][9] which inspired more girls to take 3 up the sport.

[10][11] Different styles were then developed such as lowers, uppers, sit-downs, grounds and blocking.

In 2015, Ronaldinho was recognized 3 by the World Freestyle Football Association (WFFA) as ambassador for the sport.

[4][timeframe?] Competitions have been organized across the globe and 3 videos have been shared by over 80 million of people on a monthly basis.

In recent years, some of the 3 top football players in the world have credited freestyle and street football cultures for helping to develop their talents.

These athletes 3 have included Neymar Jr,[13][14] Cristiano Ronaldo, Lionel Messi and Zlatan Ibrahimović.

[citation needed]Tricks [edit]

Tricks or moves in freestyle football 3 are categorized into different disciplines or styles:

Lower body or air move tricks are performed while standing, and use the feet 3 or legs.(lowers)

Upper body tricks are performed with the head, chest and shoulders.(uppers)

Sitting tricks are performed while seated, often with the 3 legs elevated.(sit-downs)

Ground move tricks are performed while standing with the ball on the floor.

[further explanation needed] Skillful players 3 can make the performance of ground moves seem like a choreographed dance.

Skillful players can make the performance of ground moves 3 seem like a choreographed dance.

Blocking tricks are performed by holding the ball with various parts of the lower body.

It is 3 a style inspired by breakdancing.

Acrobatic tricks are inspired by circus skills, breakdancing and gymnastics.

Transitions are intermediate moves used to bridge 3 tricks in different styles, ideally in a fluid motion.

Within the above disciplines, the following individual moves are among the most 3 popular:

Around the World (ATW), a move in which the freestyler plays the ball off of one foot, which then circles 3 up and over the ball before returning underneath to play the ball again.

An inside ATW makes the initial movement toward 3 the opposite leg, while an outside ATW makes the initial movement away from the opposite leg.

Crossover, a move in which 3 the ball is kicked into the air with one leg, and the opposite leg goes around the ball while it 3 is in the air.

Toe Bounce (TB) a move like a crossover but with the ball bouncing on the foot.

[further 3 explanation needed]

Hop the World (HTW), a move in which the ball is kicked up with one foot and circled 3 with the opposite foot.

[clarification needed] Touzani around the World (TATW), a variation of an outside ATW and a 3 crossover.

[further explanation needed] Created by Soufiane Touzani from the Netherlands.

[citation needed] Mitchy around the World (MATW), 3 as with the TATW except with an inside ATW.

Created by Mitchell James Penn from the UK.

[citation needed] Lemmens 3 Around the World (LATW), a double ATW, circling the foot twice around the airborne ball without a middle touch between 3 revolutions.

[citation needed] Palle Around the World (PATW), a triple ATW.

Created by Rickard "Palle" Sjolander of Sweden.[citation needed 3]

Stalls, moves which involve catching the ball in a stationary position.

This is commonly on the back of the neck but 3 also includes balancing on the forehead or wedged between the heel and thigh.

Clipper, a move that originated from freestyle footbag 3 in which the freestyler catches the ball midair with the inside of the foot on the side of the body.

Combos, 3 moves which directly connect tricks without juggling the ball.

No-touch combos, tricks performed in one motion without any intermediate ball touch.

For 3 example, the LATW is a two ATW no-touch combo.

Competitive freestyle [edit]

The first major competition for freestyle football was 3 Red Bull Street Style (RBSS) in 2008, which was hosted in São Paulo, Brazil.

[citation needed] Séan Garnier won this competition 3 with a style that had not been seen in the public eye before.[citation needed]

Super Ball, the first open world championship 3 (where anyone could compete) catered to freestylers with ranging styles, recognizing the many ways to judge a freestyler.

Hosted in the 3 Czech Republic, Super Ball became the premiere annual international event for freestylers.[citation needed]
