Jonathan Milan, da Itália, ganhou a sprint final para vencer a quarta etapa do Giro d'Itália, com a tabela de classificação geral permanecendo a mesma, com Tadej Pogacar continuando na liderança.

Três ciclistas, Lilian Calmejane (Intermarché-Wanty), Stefan de Bod (EF Education-EasyPost) e Francisco Muñoz (Polti-Kometa), formaram uma fuga cedo e abriram uma vantagem de cinco minutos. Filippo Ganna tentou uma fuga no último sprint, mas foi capturado a 900 metros da linha de chegada. Simone Consonni, da mesma equipa de Milan, fez um grande trabalho na linha de chegada, seguido por Milan, que superou facilmente seus rivais no sprint final.

Controversies [edit]

Sport TV is widely regarded as anti-competitive, since it is the only group of channels in Portugal with the rights to broadcast the Primeira Liga matches (except Benfica home games).[2][3]

In September 2007, Sport TV sent a cease and desist to a Portuguese live TV streaming website tvtuga.

com because the latter was providing links to streams of UEFA Champions League matches that only SPORT TV had the rights to broadcast in Portugal.

This has caused great public concern with regard to the monopoly abuse status of the SPORT TV channels.[4][5]

On 17 January 2011, Sport TV was criticized by Benfica after a match against Académica.

Benfica's director of communications at the time, João Gabriel, accused the channel commentators of bias against the club.[6][7]
