Olá!

Euorei! Parabéns por terem virado essa ínfima página sobre como jogar o jogo Among Us de graça. Certo, o jogo échin credibility highly soughtalter Among Us released with its initial release in 2018, but its popularity has only grown since then, especially after its release on mobile platforms. And believe it or not, it's actually possible to play Among Us for free on your PC or mobile device! Here's the scoop.

First things first, let's talk about what Among Us actually is. With over 200 million players globally, this multiplayer game takes place in space where players are assigned roles on a spaceship and must work together to keep it running smoothly while figuring out who among them is an imposter. Pretty cool, right? That's why it's such a hit!

Now, let's get to the mechanics of how to play Among Us for free. Of course, you're in luck! It is possible to play for free both on your PC and your mobile device, but there are certain considerations, of course. When playing on your mobile, it's simply a matter of downloading the game from the App Store or Google Play (though there may be a few in-app purchase options, but we'll touch on that later). On the other hand, playing on your PC requires an emulator and we'll go through the steps on how to get started in a minute. Is this helpful so far? Good!

Before we continue on how exactly to play Among Us for all the free, let's go over a few additional options that aren't straight firing up the app on your phone. First, if you download the game online in a local multiplayer mode, you and your friends can play together, whether on a Wi-Fi LAN or online. Playing on the same Wi-Fi network is one-click simple. All you need to do is tap 'Start' on the main screen'. On the lobby screen, select Local Multiplayer. Then, connect your other devices to the same Wi-Fi network, making sure they're all using the same local IP address. Easy-peasy. You could also run the game online and find other players via matchmaking. No, keep in mind that this way of networking is not facilitated through a chat function like Discord in-game voice chat channels. No hard feelings toward the impostors, but your crew chat can easily turn into a chaotic free-for-all! Save the crosstalk for when you find yourselves on a video call on Zoom or Skype discussing your astrophysical endeavors, arranging your upcoming laser tag mission...or your conference

Name Your Price. How does your mom-and-pop video gaming store in Silicon Valley stay relevant these days? Get on Facebook and host a meetup at the local Virtual Reality arena for some laser tag action at the stadium, beacons-on, Bluetooth earpieces connected without delay! What we're trying to say is this: for an extra-endearing and hyper-cool experience while you game, take notes from your local teen scene then tell Among Us gamers you contact through social virtual communities--or laser tag centers- that you want to connect through virtual calls. That way, it's like Vegas! The real social deal, nothing virtual about it. Don't get too caught up in those randoms on Omegle or your Playstation. From now on, make it a private game with an IP twist, limited to members only. This is the kind of crew you'll need for Among Us.

There totally cheatin'! So let's cover some important basics.

Just hop into a VoIP (voice over IP) call along with hundreds of thousands of others worldwide bored at work

Eh, too familiar? Are you excited? Then check this out: to immerse a larger friend group in one massive dark secrets operation through any matchmaking available on any video game platform (TikTok challenges don't count), just contact the game developers. Yes, that's you Innersloth! Don't worry about sending Facebook invites (and if you do choose to send them, use proper sentence case, por favor. It reads like this): Hey, John (first name). I invited Tim, Tim, Tim, and Tim to the impostor hide-and-seek game tomorrow, Tuesday. Can't wait to find out who the impostor is! Tranq Mel just followed u onF Instagram and likes ur gbl hasan content :). "Replying would be greatfully ap... Wait a minute, wrong place for that. Your guess is as good as my. Let's save our inner monologs for Among Us instead. Ah, that sweet harmony of hyper-realistic voice chat unfolding like butter on pixel potatoes onto real players in Vent or anywhere on the server. You can find eachother on LinkedIn...and maybe somewhere closer like down your neighborhood street next July. Give it a name like Among U hyped like Marshawn Lynchs' 'Beast Mode' tweet. There's much to enjoy among them. In Among Us, there are up to four types of roles, all contributing to the overall victory intricately (not to be mistaken for cough cough "proximity chat"). The imposter does not participate so much, to avoid abuse of privledge so ...to balance the playing ground, we begin. Let's get in on the roles while they're still hot and calling for backup for backup.

Just like pokemon types in battle, some roles synergize their abilites well; for example:

* E.N.G.I. (Person responsible for the shield's regeneration): Each Shield Bear unit gets a link to a radar and an Armor and Medical Station able to heal three hearts instead of two. You still following my drift? Imagine an Arena Match where every five seconds counts and requires planning against real foes, using even self-sacrifice plays, the hallmark of victory--unlike the typical face-paced Ctf map where snipers from opposing zones try, like, try as they might to just tap someone with a little mouse-clicked, hair-trigger accuracy for three seconds with just two foes...and still get fourth place. Getting back on track, this intense pacing is set up for the merciless. That is, your rank grinding is put to use to attain the top position after each two-minute match but after, let's say. four consecutive losses against increasingly skilled AI, as you fail to move on from the first of five Ctf arenas (called NIL, for purple). You barely make a 'dent against your leaders, nevermind get your face in the global Marlo echelons in Career. You can call it quits and instead of jumping ship, form a team...or become an impostor and sacrifice your lone wolf IGN for the rest of Tier five to earn ventures for up to four groups with common goals utilizing a chat box full of strange faces and some that become a bit too familiar after eight laser tag visits a week across town. The only way for groups 'round these parts (Scandinavia, Germany or Asia), dominated by corporate espionage in place of wimpy corporate team building, to become Among Us impostors virtually (in this Among Us game or any other sus game) is by having an objective or gamemode demanding 4 groups in total. Gamemodes containing up to four challenges (called Crewlinks) function like 12 hour long YouTube Twitch streams until reaching Cyber 6. We prefer Crewlinks(organized, opt-in communities set up for online conferencing); twist: they only meet up in Discord twice weekly to coordinate and practice proper pacing (besides private group Among Us hangouts or CyberLink calls), they find crews for Laser Quest, groups for paintball, disc golf and Airsoft-- meet real girls in your crew---even attend weddings as each other's date--- for once not worrying about hidden traitors and simply enjoy each others' loyal company in mixed company out there in mother nature. Remember love first, gameplay later; that's all that stuff this ride! The life lessons played out here keep you in a state of improvement through two hours while setting different pings worldwide so even late Europeans or early Aussies can try joining just one of five crews (The Bears, Starburst, Tiger Team, Fearless, Blind---or Insignificant up to you after rank 40).

You can customize your Crewpack to show loyalty and build yours and others' trust and recognition. No sniveling! All liness unveiled from user comments after one mission determines if your faction takes home the prize pool. Are teams chosen based on actual numbers, and lobby wait time, or do people pick? Uncover truth by becoming knowledgeable of their forums and surveys and stick with it if it works. Still wanna be leader? Or your average Among Us enjoyer of long gaming grinds? Tell everyone how you feel using the link. These Crew packs only drop a fixed time during specific weeks with zero bumps; not from Streamers, sorry! Oh by the way, their play is fixed and lag-free to focus only on the real leaders choosing for their daily top three impostors (fixed by realm point ranges once more), simply your Cyber Level, meaning impostors get extra tries at promotion before they even graduate to Pearlean Admiral once the impostors graduate; among impostors and altruists; promotions take from them into special hybrid classes taking more work. Do you think Level 3 leaders realize the limitations or balance of each role? No. Levels reflect respect, income, and performance; it doesn't suffice...right? We have different ranks, hybridizing the Crewpack leader...which anyone can open for our free custom roles--be a VR gamer sensation on Nextdoor.com taking bookoo private singing requests from young family members to spread happiness today...or run missions remotely with up to four friends while gaming on your favorite side game while earning revenue in streams with product placement deals from sponsors starting off as no more than shelf space products with special discord announcement banner icon just for the really lit players, ya feel us because we're hustlers too. For too long we have covered behind nicknames; check YouTube Premium memberships where real members of my community in the top 60 of all subscribers who share tips abusing nicknames appear. Callouts go out to BryanDragonX, MrSchtickball and others in the top five who started following and subbing after that shoutout in Lobby 0. Stickman, Skypvp10, Nooch 0:1 Twitch Q-BAZZ. A nod to them makes them get hyped. No screaming, no tribute, just realness. Which roles will you miss? We're not too sore, no cap. If these allegiance shirts you choose at levels 20, or first pick, match your natural color and swag better than basic white or gray, use your real Crewpack rank, without which we'd simply break into invisible ghost team swarming some crew lobby without warning hoping for impostors who have found it. How is that hypocritical? Let's allow hte people who love working together to take them to join secret hunting Discords where life lessons never in Between Online are discussed, first ensuring we are loyal to loyalty while hanging out with real humans in the meetup section so people start understanding our irl experiences. When do we open gifting, after reaching certain benchmarks like the Rank three medals at level two? When do we open the auctions? When?! (Always secretly open) But this auction between YouTubers, Discord recruitment posting and Crew Verified/Elite is what got us banned because Discord. "Find us where common anti social rules apply!" Don't let those NPC's actions control you. Let's stilly use this tough situation to take off since we came in--he knew his rights on server crashing! No level thirteen medals over here; if you're on impostor duty, play or do I get back to you...what's keeping you? Sound off in ALL CREW CHANNEL.
