Baby's first words can be a golden memory for parents. Here are some ways to encourage baby's first words: Talk often to your baby. Talk about what you're doing and what's going on around you. This might seem like a simple suggestion, but listening to your baby can help them develop their language skills. When you talk to your baby, pause and wait for them to respond. Respond after your baby talks. Don't interrupt your baby while they're trying to speak. Sing songs and read books that encourage engagement. Stories can inspire your kid to talk [1]. Encourage your baby to talk by naming the things they point to. For example, if your baby points to a dog and says "dadadadada," you can respond by saying, "Yes! That's a dog!" and then elaborate with details such as the dog's color and breed [2]. Don't be like the parents you see in commercials who beam with pride and delight over every coo and babble that their six-month-old utters. In reality, it could be another six or seven months before your baby speaks recognizable words. Around nine months, babies can understand much more than they can express verbally, so they may reply with a series of wails and babbling sounds accompanied by gestures instead of speaking actual words [3]. When your baby shows interest in a toy, label it for them. For example, "You're playing with a block. Great job! Do you want to stack the blocks?" While reading, repeat the named objects as your baby points to them. A simple and fun way to help teach language is to respond when being looked at. Hold up a toy or your face and say, "Can you find the nose? Where's the nose?" This goes hand in hand with labeling, but it cues your baby to what to try to say [4].
