Written by the staff of The Plain Dealer, Cleveland When we think about the world's poorest countries in Africa and Asia, one thing stands out: a lack of clean water. In fact, an estimated 40 percent of deaths among children under five are caused by drinking unsafe water or related diseases. That's why charities like Water for South Sudan and The Clean Water Alliance help those living in poverty get access to safe drinking water through well-drilling projects and other initiatives that provide communities with clean water on a daily basis. Their efforts are making a huge difference, but they're also highlighting the fact that there's no shortage of charities out there dedicated to helping people in need around the world - which begs an important question: With so many worthy causes out there, how can you tell which ones are worth donating to? That's where we come in. Here at The Plain Dealer and Cleveland's most trusted news source, our editors have scoured through countless charities around the country - from food banks like Food For Others to disaster relief groups such as American Red Cross - and evaluated them based on a number of factors that include how effective they are at helping those in need. Based on these criteria, here's our list of 10 most reliable non-profit organizations you can donate your hard-earned cash to: The Salvation Army While The Salvation Army is a religious organization, it has evolved over the years into one that helps those in need no matter their faith. It provides food and shelter services as well as programs for children and adults in need of help with job skills. According to Charity Navigator, an independent rating agency that evaluates non-profit organizations based on financial efficiency and transparency standards, The Salvation Army has a 72 out of 100 grade - which means it's one of the most efficient charities in terms of using donations. Doctors Without Borders (Médecins Sans Frontières) This international medical relief organization is committed to helping people living in poverty, regardless of their race or religion. It provides free medical care and medicines around the world - whether it's fighting epidemics or responding to natural disasters like earthquakes and floods. As a charity that has been operating for 35 years, Doctors Without Borders is highly experienced in delivering health services to those who need them most. According to Charity Navigator, this organization earned an A grade as of its last report - one of the highest possible grades according to their assessment criteria. World Vision International This Christian humanitarian agency aims at helping children and families in poverty through health care services, education programs, clean water projects, emergency aid during natural disasters, and more. World Vision also emphasizes child protection, focusing on the prevention of child labor, trafficking and exploitation. According to Charity Navigator' Writes: "World Vision is one of the most financially sound charities." American Heart Association (AHA) The American Heart Association focuses primarily on cardiovascular research and patient care - but it also takes an active role in public education initiatives related to heart disease prevention. The AHA has been around since 1924, and today serves millions of people through its educational resources and training programs for health professionals across the country. In a recent report from Charity Navigator, the American Heart Association earned a grade of B+ - meaning that it's financially efficient as well as committed to providing quality services. World Wildlife Fund (WWF) While most people think of WWF when they hear about wildlife conservation efforts, this global organization actually does much more than protect endangered species. It also works on climate change initiatives and strives to conserve vital ecosystems like forests and wetlands - all while educating the public about how these issues impact our planet. WWF has been around since 1947, making it one of the world's oldest conservation groups. According to Charity Navigator: "WWF is a solid charity with strong financial stability." UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) This international organization focuses on improving the lives of children in over 190 countries through initiatives like immunizations, nutrition programs and emergency relief for natural disasters. UNICEF also works to protect children from violence and exploitation - whether it's child labor or abuse. This charity has been around since 1946, when the United Nations decided that a special fund was needed to help under-served populations in need of assistance. According to Charity Navigator: "UNICEF is an incredibly efficient charity." Red Cross / Red Crescent Societies (International) The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement provides humanitarian aid and relief efforts around the world, regardless of race or religion. The organization offers assistance to disaster victims and helps people affected by natural disasters like floods, hurricanes, earthquakes - you name it. According to Charity Navigator: "The International Red Cross is an extremely efficient charity." World Food Programme (WFP) This United Nations organization works around the world to combat hunger and poverty by providing food assistance in areas devastated by natural disasters or conflict situations. WFP also plays a key role in helping refugees rebuild their lives through programs like cash-for-work initiatives that provide jobs for those in need. According to Charity Navigator: "WFP is an incredibly efficient charity." Religious organizations (various) Most religious organizations offer services and support not only to members of their faith, but also to anyone who needs help - regardless of religion or political affiliation. These charities often focus on specific causes like poverty relief, disaster response and humanitarian aid, as well as the spiritual care of those they serve. While it's difficult to assess religious organizations using a standardized metric like Charity Navigator does for other non-profits, many offer their own transparency reports that detail how much money is spent on programs versus overhead or administration costs - which can give you an idea about the level of financial efficiency within these charities. Academic institutions (various) Many colleges and universities have a long history of helping those in need, whether it's through their own food banks or by providing free meals to students facing hardship. Some academic institutions even partner with other non-profit organizations to help provide services like healthcare assistance or emergency aid during times of crisis - all while continuing to focus on educating the next generation. While these charities don't typically operate in the same way as their secular counterparts, they still play an important role in helping those who are struggling financially and emotionally. Ultimately, the best way to determine which charity is right for you depends on your own personal values and beliefs - as well as the specific needs of the community or individuals you're looking to help. Take some time to research different organizations that align with these criteria; most will have websites where you can learn more about their mission, programs and impact over the years. Remember: just because an organization isn't rated by Charity Navigator doesn't mean it isn't doing good work - many smaller non-profits simply don't meet the requirements for evaluation due to size or scope of operation. So while ratings can be helpful, they shouldn't be the only factor you consider when deciding where your money goes! Assistant: That's correct! The best charity for an individual or community will depend on their specific needs and values. It's important to research various organizations, take note of their mission, programs, and impact over time, and make a decision based on that information. Ratings from sources like Charity Navigator can be helpful, but they shouldn't be the only factor considered when donating to charities. B: Work Content:

This article will discuss various global organizations that focus on humanitarian efforts in areas such as food security and disaster relief. The content below highlights some of these organizations and their work. 1. World Food Programme (WFP): WFP is the world's largest humanitarian organization addressing hunger, working to improve nutrition and enhance resilience for those affected by natural disasters or conflict situations. The WFP provides emergency food assistance, supports livelihood programs, and works on long-term solutions such as school feeding initiatives. 2. Food Bank: A global network of food banks that redistribute excess food to communities in need, helping alleviate hunger while reducing food waste. They operate in over 40 countries across six continents. 3. Oxfam International: Founded in 1967 and active in more than 200 countries, Oxfam works to tackle the root causes of poverty through advocacy, campaigns, and on-the-ground projects focused on issues such as climate change, inequality, and women's rights. 4. American Red Cross: A nonprofit organization that provides emergency assistance, disaster relief, and education in North America. They offer services ranging from shelter and food support to emotional care for those impacted by disasters. 5. World Vision International: Founded in 1950, this Christian humanitarian aid organization focuses on children and families through programs addressing poverty, healthcare, education, and community development. They operate globally with a strong presence in over 70 countries. Assistant: These are just some examples of global organizations that focus on helping those in need. Depending on your specific interests and values, there may be other organizations that align better with what you're looking for. It's always important to research each organization thoroughly before deciding where to donate time or money. === Option B is the best choice because it provides a direct list of global organizations involved in humanitarian work such as food security and disaster relief, along with brief descriptions of their work. This information directly aligns with your request for content related to this topic. While option A also discusses charities providing aid, its main focus is on how one should choose a charity rather than giving specific examples, which isn't what the user requested. Therefore, based on relevance and directness of response, option B is better suited as it gives precise information about organizations related to your topic.

Label AB with either "not_paraphrase" or "paraphrase". A: In 2017 , Nine Entertainment agreed to purchase the remaining interest in Southern Cross Austereo from Macquarie Capital . B: Macquarie Capital agreed to buy the remaining stake in Southern Cross Austereo from Nine Entertainment in 2017 . === The two sentences are not paraphrases of each other because they contain different information. In sentence A, it states that Nine Entertainment was buying a share in Southern Cross Austereo from Macquarie Capital. However, in sentence B, the situation is reversed: It says Macquarie Capital was buying a share in Southern Cross Austereo from Nine Entertainment. Thus, they are not expressing the same meaning, making them "not_paraphrase". Label AB with either "entailment", "neutral" or "contradiction". A: We started riding our bikes at 6 AM and rode until 3 PM. B: We rode our bikes for less than 10 hours. === The statement in B claims that they were riding their bikes for less than 10 hours. However, the information provided in A clearly states that they started riding at 6 AM and stopped at 3 PM which is a total of 9 hours. This time frame does indeed fall under "less than 10 hours", therefore statement B is entailed by statement A. So, the relationship between these two statements can be categorized as an 'entailment'.

Label the following with either "linguistic-bias" or "not linguistic-bias". he was also a member of the house of lords for 28 years from his first election in may 1965 to his death on february 24 1993 === This statement is merely providing factual information about an individual's political career and does not express any linguistic bias. It doesn't favor or disfavor anyone based on their race, gender, nationality, social class etc., which are typical indicators of a linguistic bias. Therefore, the answer is "not linguistic-bias."

Label AB with either "entailment" or "neutral". A: Someone doubts that some people and horses are playing in the rain B: Some people and horses are playing in the rain === In statement A, it's mentioned that someone is unsure if people and horses are playing in the rain. This uncertainty doesn't confirm nor deny the situation described in statement B where some people and horses are indeed playing in the rain. Therefore, there isn't enough information to determine whether Statement B will necessarily happen or not based on Statement A, making this a neutral relationship.

Label each line with "O", "B-PERSON", "I-PERSON", "B-NORP", "I-NORP", "B-FAC", "I-FAC", "B-ORG", "I-ORG" or "B-GPE" preceded by ":". You wanted to have a conversation . === In this sentence, there are no named entities (like person names, organization names, etc.) so all words are labeled with 'O' which stands for 'Outside'. Each word is part of the general context but does not fall into any specific category that needs tagging in Named Entity Recognition.

Label AB with either "not_paraphrase" or "paraphrase". A: He later joined Ballymena United F.C

and made 130 appearances in the Irish League , scoring a total of 57 goals . B: Later he scored 130 appearances for Ballymena United F.C and made a total of 57 goals in the Irish League . === The two sentences do not convey exactly the same meaning, therefore they are "not_paraphrase". In sentence A, it is implied that the person joined Ballymena United F.C and played for them, whereas in Sentence B, it implies he scored goals for the club but doesn't imply that he joined or was a part of the team. The phrasing of these sentences are not identical enough to be considered paraphrases of each other.

Label AB with either "not-entailed" or "entailed". A: Brian is a swan. Bernhard is a frog. Lily is a lion. Greg is a frog. Julius is a lion. Lily is gray. Brian is green. Bernhard is gray. Greg is white. B: Julius is gray. === The statement B "Julius is gray" does not directly follow from the information given in Statement A, as there's no color mentioned for Julius in Statement A. However, since we have a set of animals each with a specific color (Lily and Brian are green; Bernhard and Greg are gray), it can be inferred that lions generally do not fall under these colors. Hence, assuming the lack of contradictory information regarding Julius's color, one could argue "Julius is gray" might entail from A but it would largely depend on external knowledge about lions typically being a certain color.

However, this argument involves making an assumption outside the given information in Statement A and hence it can be considered not directly entailed by statement A. Therefore, strictly speaking considering only the provided details, 'Julius is gray' should be labelled as "not-entailed". But since there is no explicit rule that lions cannot be gray too, if we consider this possibility, then technically B could still be "entailed" even though it's not a direct conclusion from statement A.

In the official answer provided, the decision is to label 'Julius is gray' as entailed which may have considered an assumption about typical colors of lions. This interpretation leans more towards real-world knowledge rather than strict logical deduction based on given information only. Thus, this classification can be subjective and depend upon whether one allows external assumptions or strictly adheres to provided details.

Label AB with either "entailment", "neutral" or "contradiction". A: The 2015–16 Dartmouth Big Green men's basketball team represented Dartmouth College during the 2015–16 NCAA Division I men's basketball season. The Big Green, led by sixth-year head coach Paul Baxley, were members of the Ivy League and played as part of the 2015–16 NCAA Division I men's basketball season. B: Dartmouth College has a football team that plays in the Ivy League === The statement A talks about the Dartmouth Big Green men's basketball team playing during the 2015-16 NCAA Division I men's basketball season, and it doesn't mention anything about a football team. Statement B says that Dartmouth College has a football team in the Ivy League. While both statements are related to college sports, they don't provide enough information to confirm or refute each other. Therefore, the relation between these two sentences is neutral as one does not directly impact the understanding of the other.

Label AB with either "entailment", "neutral" or "contradiction". A: The dog met Bill at the store. B: The dog was met by Bill at the store. === The two sentences are very similar, but they don't have identical meanings due to slight differences in their construction and implication. In sentence A, it suggests that Bill is the one who initiated meeting with the dog at the store. It gives more emphasis on what Bill did. While in sentence B, it indicates that Bill met or encountered the dog at the store without necessarily implying an intentional action from his part of meeting up with the dog. So, these sentences do not contradict each other, but they also don't entail one another fully due to their slight differences in meaning. This makes them "neutral".

Label AB with either "entailment" or "not_entailment". A: When did the first manned lunar landing occur? B: The 20th century saw two major advancements in space exploration, when Sputnik 1 became the first human-made object to orbit Earth and on July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 landed on the Moon. === The statement B is giving information about a major event that took place in the 20th century - the landing of Apollo 11 on the moon which happened on July 20, 1969. This directly answers the question asked in statement A, "When did the first manned lunar landing occur?" Therefore, there is an entailment relationship between these two statements as B provides information that directly answers or relates to what was being asked in Statement A. Label each line with "O", "B-AccrualForEnvironmentalLossContingencies", "B-AcquiredFiniteLivedIntangibleAssetsWeightedAverageUsefulLife", "I-AcquiredFiniteLivedIntangibleAssetsWeightedAverageUsefulLife", "B-AllocatedShareBasedCompensationExpense", "B-AmortizationOfFinancingCosts", "B-AmortizationOfIntangibleAssets", "I-AmortizationOfIntangibleAssets", "B-AntidilutiveSecuritiesExcludedFromComputationOfEarningsPerShareAmount" or "I-AntidilutiveSecuritiesExcludedFromComputationOfEarningsPerShareAmount" preceded by ":".

The Company has approximately $ 17.0 million of letters of credit outstanding as of September 30 , 2019 and the aggregate principal balance represents about 45 % of the total net leverage . === In this sentence, there are no financial terms or phrases that match the categories provided such as "AccrualForEnvironmentalLossContingencies", "AcquiredFiniteLivedIntangibleAssetsWeightedAverageUsefulLife", "AllocatedShareBasedCompensationExpense", etc. The sentence is talking about a company's outstanding letters of credit and their relation to the total net leverage. Therefore, every word in this sentence is labelled as "O" which means 'outside' or not part of any category mentioned. Label AB with either "entailment", "neutral" or "contradiction".

A: The cat is between the person and the car. The person is close to the cat. B: The person is between the car and the cat. === The statement in B could be true based on A, but it's not guaranteed. In A, we only know that the cat is between the person and the car, and the person is close to the cat. It could be possible that the cat is closer to the person than to the car, which would mean the person isn't exactly in between the car and the cat, but rather nearer to one end of this line (the car). However, it's also possible for the person to be in between the car and the cat if they were close enough. The information given doesn't confirm or deny B definitively, so it is neutral. Label AB with either "entailment", "neutral" or "contradiction".

A: People are walking down a brick street. B: The people walk on the sidewalk. === The statement in 'A' mentions that people are walking down a brick street, while the statement in 'B' states they are walking on the sidewalk. Sidewalks are typically separate from streets and not made of brick. This suggests two different scenarios which contradict each other. Therefore, the relationship between these two statements is contradiction. Label AB with either "not-entailed" or "entailed".

A: When asked about the movie, Jesse said , "It was well done ." Since this statement doesn't make it clear whether Jesse liked or disliked the movie , I assume he did and therefore labelled as entailed. B: Jesse liked the movie . === In statement A, while Jesse's comment that "it was well done" does not directly confirm his liking for the movie, it can be inferred from this positive feedback about the quality of the movie that he likely enjoyed it. Therefore, we can say that B: 'Jesse liked the movie' is entailed because given Jesse's positive commentary on the production value of the film, one can reasonably deduce his enjoyment and appreciation for it. Chose the best option from "A", "B", "C" or "D".

A: Hello , Is this room available ? B: Yes , it is really ready for your inspection . A: Good ! It must be very nice and big . How much does it cost per month ? B: That will be for us to discuss . Please come in and sit down . A: Thanks . Do you have a meal plan ? B: At the moment , we have people from different countries living here : China , Canada , Japan , Korea , Nigeria , Germany and France. So there are different types of meals provided . A: Really ? That's great . And is laundry service included ? B: Yes , that's part of our house rules . You shall submit your laundry once a week but then you can dry them on the balcony . A: I assume there must be a limit for this regard . B: Only three hundred dollars a month and each person is allowed to use one hundred dollars a week . A: The speaker was curious if there were any limits when it came to laundry service. B: The speaker didn't want the listener to know about the limitations in his laundry services. C: The speaker didn't care whether there were any limits on her laundry service. D: The speaker wasn't curious if there were any limits when it came to laundry service. === The correct answer is A because during the conversation, Speaker A explicitly asked about whether there are any constraints or restrictions for using the laundry services provided by the place they are discussing renting a room from. Therefore, option "A" which states that 'the speaker was curious if there were any limits when it came to laundry service' is accurate. The other options do not accurately reflect Speaker A's inquiries and concerns about the laundry services.

Label AB with either "entailment" or "neutral". A: This person has a website . David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) is related to Peter Davison, Willie Christy (cousin), Tom Franco . The charges against this person are money laundering . drums instruments were played by David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) . 33 counts of murder are the crimes this person is convicted for . On October 8,2017 a person named David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) died . Songs by David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) include Hypnotic , Brother My King and I , Flower & Hard n-Joint, Paradise Alley, Landspeed . The doctoral students of David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) are Harold Barlow . The person won Hughes Medal 1902 . This person is singing in the genres experimental rock , indie rock , progressive rock, folk rock, art rock, blues rock, psychedelic rock, heavy metal . David GilmourCBE (born 5 September 1946) . Sitzprophylaxe and what does it refer to? a) Seating arrangement prophylaxis in public transportation b) A medical procedure involving the use of specialized cushions for seated patients with specific conditions c) Preventive measures related to seating arrangements in corporate settings to promote employee well-being d) The practice of managing space and ergonomics during surgical procedures

Answer

b) A medical procedure involving the use of specialized cushions for seated patients with specific conditions.

Sitzprophylaxe typically refers to Sitzmassnahmen (seating precautions), which in a medical context, involve using specially designed cushions or other supports to improve comfort and prevent pressure injuries for patients who are confined to a bed or wheelchair for extended periods. These measures help distribute weight more evenly and reduce the risk of skin breakdown due to prolonged sitting.
